Dear [PROVIDER-NAME] [NAME] , [ADDRESS]. [POSTCODE]

DOB: [DATE] , Hospital Number: [MED-ID] , NHS Number: [NHS-NO]

I reviewed this lovely lady in Mr [NAME]'s clinic today. As you know she is still suffering with severe superficial dyspareunia and previous examination has shown no obvious skin changes or an ultrasound scan which was arranged by us came back as normal as were the swabs and I note still being looked after with regard to her ulcerative colitis. Examination today shows very touch point tenderness around the vestibule in the posterior half only. As previously shown no significant change in the skin and she has significant vaginismus.

I have discussed with MISS [NAME] today in some length regarding the diagnosis of provoked vulvodynia and the difficulties that we have sometimes in getting solutions to this problem. I have talked about using Epaderm to wash with and avoiding soaps and gels which may irritate the skin in this area. I think she should continue with this life long. I have also given her some written information about the vulval pain society and she is quite keen to arm herself with much information as she can. If you would be kind enough to prescribe her 10 mg of amitriptyline once a day which we find has significant use in managing these patients. I understand that she is already on citalopram but that this low dose will not have any particular consequences for that. If 10 mg does not seem to be working very well we may consider going up on the doses of amitriptyline and at that time we may have to consider about reducing or stopping her citalopram. We will review her back in the clinic in three or four time.

Many thanks

Yours sincerely
